

Help for Your Child's Behavior

Lenawee Community Mental Health Authority (LCMHA) has a free program to help kids, teens, and families. We work with you to find your child's strengths. Then, we connect you to helpful programs and people in the community.

We Can Help If Your Child:

- Gets angry or upset a lot
- Has trouble going to school
- Finds it hard to follow rules
- Feels sad, worried, or alone
- Needs help making good choices

How it Works:

- You can ask to participate in the program. Schools, police, or other groups can also refer you.
- You and your child will meet with our Program Coordinator. You choose where this private meeting happens. We can meet at school, court, or the LCMHA office.
- We'll talk with you and fill out a short form together.
- Then we'll share ideas and connect you to programs that can help your child and family.
- We'll also check in with you for a short time to see how things are going.

We Can Connect You With:

- Counseling or mentoring
- Fun activities and sports
- Parent or peer support groups
- Help with food, housing, rides, or other needs
- More services if your child needs extra care

You choose what works best for your family

Call Robyn McKenzie, Mental Health and Juvenile Justice Service Coordinator at 517-263-8905 x 245 to learn more.